Following a screening of the film, there will be a talk and Q&A with the artist, Clyde Muirshiel Regional Park Rangers and the Clyde Bat Group. Considering themes of ecological loss, participants are invited to a workshop with the artist in which they will create their own, alternative 'fieldnote' journal using writing and printmaking.

The Clyde Bat Group was formed in 1977. Their aims are to protect, conserve and increase the public awareness of bats. They take part in various national bat surveys and do bat walks/talks to promote our flying friends.
